

THE ASSOCIATION OF JEWISH LIBRARIES

SYDNEY TAYLOR BOOK AWARDS

The Sydney Taylor Book Award was established in honor of the author of the classic All of a Kind Family series by her husband, Ralph Taylor, to encourage the publication of outstanding books of positive Jewish content for children. The seal of the Association is awarded annually to the authors of the most distinguished contributions to Jewish children's literature published in the preceding year. The first Sydney Taylor Book Award was given in 1968. In most years since then, two awards have been given, one for younger readers and one for older readers. Beginning in 2007, books for teens are recognized. Honor books are also cited. Sydney Taylor Body-of-Work Awards have been granted periodically since 1971.

Notable Books of Jewish Content for Children & Teens is published annually by the Sydney Taylor Book Award Committee. The bibliographies from 1999-2010 are available for viewing and downloading from www.SydneyTaylorBookAward.org. A compilation of all bibliographies from 1985-2000 is available for purchase from www.jewishlibraries.org (Click on "Publications").

Schwartz, Howard. Gathering Sparks. Illustrations by Kristina Swarner. New York: Roaring Brook Press, an imprint of Macmillan Children's Publishing Group, 2010. ISBN: 9781596432802.

Dreamy, nature-filled watercolor, gouache, and pastel paintings beautifully illustrate the Jewish concept of Tikkun Olam, or repairing the world, through an intimate dialogue between a grandchild and grandfather. While based on the ancient mystical teaching of the famous sixteenth century Rabbi Isaac Luria, the gentle, inspiring text and soothing illustrations are accessible to readers of all faiths. (Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Deutsch, Barry. Hereville: How Mirka Got Her Sword. New York: Amulet Books, an imprint of Abrams, 2010. ISBN: 9780810984226.

Eleven year-old Mirka, living in a contemporary Orthodox community, has more on her mind than learning the "womanly arts" her stepmother insists she acquire. She is on a quest to find a sword and slay a dragon, when she encounters witches, trolls, a vicious pig, and a ghost along the way. Computer generated illustrations in a muted palette create an amusing and refreshing graphic novel adventure. (Award Winner for Older Readers)

Reinhardt, Dana. The Things a Brother Knows. New York: Wendy Lamb Books, an imprint of Random House Children's Books, 2010. ISBN: 9780375844553.

When Levi's older brother Boaz makes an uncharacteristic decision to join the Marines, his Israeli-American family is shocked. He returns safely but hardly speaks to anyone and barely leaves his room. When Boaz claims he is going on a hiking trip, Levi follows him on a journey from Boston to Washington, DC on foot and comes to understand the depth of his brother's pain, and his love and loyalty for his family. (Award Winner for Teen Readers)

Gershman, Sarah. Modeh Ani: A Good Morning Book. Illustrations by Kristina Swarner. Oakland, CA: EKS Publishing, 2010. ISBN: 9780939144648.

A lyrical interpretation of a selection of Morning Blessings taken from the "Birchot HaShachar" and written with a simplicity and elegance that can be understood by young listeners and readers. The illustrations are full of emotion, expressing the mystery of the dawn, the innocence of a child, the warmth of family, and the excitement and awe of facing each new day. (Honor Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Glaser, Linda. Emma's Poem: The Voice of the Statue of Liberty. Illustrations by Claire A. Nivola. New York: Houghton Mifflin Books for Children, 2010. ISBN: 9780547171845.

This beautiful blending of words and pictures explores the life of Emma Lazarus and her work as a writer and humanitarian, focusing on her inspiring words of poetry in "The New Colossus" which would become the permanent inscription for the Statue of Liberty. (Honor Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Goldin, Barbara Diamond. Cakes and Miracles: A Purim Tale. Illustrations by Jaime Zollars. New York: Marshall Cavendish Children, 2010. ISBN: 9780761457015.

Young, blind Hershel wishes he could help his widowed mother more. When an angel appears in his dream, Hershel finds that he has special gifts he can use to help his mother bake for the Jewish holiday of Purim. Rich, full-spread illustrations in collage and acrylic paint warmly depict the Eastern European shtetl setting with expression and dimension in this update of the 1991 classic. (Honor Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Jablonski, Carla. Resistance. Illustrations by Leland Purvis. New York: First Second, an imprint of Macmillan Children's Publishing Group, 2010. ISBN: 9781596432918.

Paul must help his family run their hotel while his father is being held by the Nazi authorities. But when his best friend Henri, who is Jewish, escapes a roundup and is left behind, Paul and his sister decide to hide him and help him escape with the French Resistance. A graphic novel that provides a cinematic story of prejudice, fear, courage, and bold ingenuity. (Honor Award Winner for Older Readers)

Krieger, Evelyn. One Is Not a Lonely Number. Sharon, MA: YM Books, 2010. ISBN: 9780984162420.

As an only child, Talia is an anomaly at her Jewish day school, where large families are the norm. When a young woman stays for an extended visit, Talia is forced to share her family and her home. Talia's journey toward understanding herself, her parents, and her friends is guided by her Jewish morals and values providing a positive and authentic portrayal of the contemporary Orthodox community for readers of all backgrounds. (Honor Award Winner for Older Readers)

Meyer, Susan Lynn. Black Radishes. New York: Delacorte Press, an imprint of Random House Children's Books, 2010. ISBN: 9780385738811.

Shortly before France is invaded, Gustave and his parents flee Paris for the countryside. Lonely for the friends he left behind, Gustave also faces anti-Semitism at school and an uncertain future while the family waits for visas to immigrate to America. Action, tension, and well developed characters coupled with compelling details and beautifully crafted prose create a detailed picture of life for Jewish families in France during World War II. (Honor Award Winner for Older Readers)

Chayil, Eishes. Hush. New York: Walker & Company, a division of Bloomsbury Publishing, 2010. ISBN: 9780802720887.

Eight years after her best friend hangs herself, Gittel breaks her silence and risks her own reputation, and that of her family, to come forward to the police with the real reason that led to the suicide. Written anonymously by a member of the ultra-Orthodox Chassidic sect in Brooklyn, the story painfully and vividly reveals the ongoing effects of incest and molestation on the victim, as well as on friends, family, and the community. (Honor Award Winner for Teen Readers)

Gleitzman, Morris. Once. New York: Henry Holt and Company, 2010. ISBN: 9780805090260.

The brutality and devastation of the Holocaust is shown through a Polish orphan named Felix and his experiences after he runs away from the orphanage where he lived for almost four years. Believing that his parents might still be alive, he tries to find them at their family-owned bookstore only to discover that his town no longer has any Jews still living in it and all the books in his family shop are gone. (Honor Award Winner for Teen Readers)

Littman, Sarah Darer. Life, After. New York: Scholastic Press, an imprint of Scholastic, Inc. ISBN:9780375844553.

Daniella Bensimon's comfortable world in Buenos Aires, Argentina is slipping away after the country spirals into an economic meltdown. Faced with increasing economic distress and personal loss, the family makes the difficult decision to emigrate and struggles to adjust to their new life in New York. (Honor Award Winner for Teen Readers)

2010

Wayland, April Halprin. New Year at the Pier: A Rosh Hashanah Story. Illustrations by Stéphane Jorisch. New York: Dial Books for Young Readers, a division of Penguin Young Readers Group, 2009. ISBN: 978-080373279-7.

The author employs her own memories of community tashlich at the beach in this loving, charmingly illustrated description of Izzy and his family and friends as they gently apologize for misdeeds, grant forgiveness, and toss breadcrumbs into the sea as part of their Rosh Hashanah observance. (Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Friedman, Robin. The Importance of Wings. Watertown, Massachusetts: Charlesbridge Publishing, 2009. ISBN: 978-158-89330-5.

The title of this coming-of-age novel refers to both the layered hairstyle Roxanne wants but cannot achieve with her straight locks, and what happens when an Israeli teen who wants to be more American discovers her inner beauty and self confidence with the help of a friend. (Award Winner for Older Readers)

Engle, Margarita. Tropical Secrets: Holocaust Refugees in Cuba. New York: Henry Holt Books for Young Readers, an imprint of Macmillan Children's Publishing Group, 2009. ISBN: 978-080508936-3.

Newbery Honor Winner Engle continues to illuminate the lesser known history of Cuba: the challenge of German refugees seeking a new home there after Kristallnacht. Free verse in the voices of a German boy, a Cuban girl, and a Russian immigrant paint different perspectives of a complicated political and historical era. (Award Winner for Teen Readers)

Cohen, Deborah Bodin. Nachshon, Who Was Afraid to Swim: A Passover Story. Illustrated by Jago. Minneapolis: Kar-Ben, an imprint of Lerner Publishing Group, 2009. ISBN: 978-082258765-1.

Nachshon is not afraid of anything, except swimming. As the Jews leave Egypt, he realizes that in order to reach freedom he must face his fears and step into the water of the Red Sea. Imaginative artwork complements this story based on the Midrash. (Honor Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Jules, Jacqueline. Benjamin and the Silver Goblet. Illustrations by Natascia Ugliano. Minneapolis: Kar-Ben, an imprint of Lerner Publishing Group, 2009. ISBN: 978-082258758-3.

Benjamin, the youngest of Jacob's sons, must accompany his brothers to Egypt and meet the governor (Joseph). This young boy's perspective of events remains true to the biblical narration while making it accessible to younger readers. (Honor Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Weber, Elka. Yankee at the Seder. Illustrations by Adam Gustavson. Berkeley, California: Tricycle Press, 2009. ISBN: 978-1-58246-256-1.

Based on a true tale, this beautifully illustrated story recounts the participation of a "Yankee Jew," Myer Levy, as a guest at a Virginia Passover Seder shortly after the end of the Civil War. Ten-year-old Jacob sees the words of the Haggadah ring true, as all who are hungry are welcome at the table. (Honor Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Winter, Jonah. You Never Heard of Sandy Koufax? Illustrations by André Carrilho. New York: Schwartz & Wade Books, an imprint of Random House Children's Books, 2009. ISBN: 978-0375837388.

Koufax's rise from a Jewish boy in Brooklyn to one of the all-time greats of baseball as a Los Angeles Dodger is told in conversational style by an imagined teammate. A lenticular cover and magnificent artwork brings the left-hander's style to life. (Honor Award Winner for Younger Readers)

Metselaar, Menno and Ruud van der Rol. Anne Frank: Her Life in Words and Pictures from the Archives of the Anne Frank House. Translated by Arnold J. Pomerans. New York: Roaring Brook Press/Flash Point, an imprint of Macmillan Children's Publishing Group, 2009. ISBN: 978-1596435469.

Archival photographs of Anne and her family, her actual writing and diary, and the annex are powerful and instrumental in bringing her life into context. The text details world events as well as Anne's life. (Honor Award Winner for Older Readers)
